The men held the weapons muzzle down-

"Gentlemen," said Colton, "are you Broderick replied after Terry saying: "I am ready."

There was a report from Broderick's pistol, followed in a second by Terry's. For some reason Broderick's pistol exploded before it had been brought to a level. The bullet buried itself in the ground a third of the distance short. Had it gone all the way it would have struck its mark, for it went in a perfectly direct line. The report of Terry's pistol had hardly died away when Broderick was seen to start. He turned half way round and grasped at the air as though trying to recover his balance. His head dropped and he fell flat on his back, his pale face upturned to the sky. He lay on the ground while Colton and Has-keil supported his head. Dr. Von Loehn, his surgeon, was too agitated to be of serv-ice. The blood spirted from the Senator's wound, and Von Loehn did not seem to know how to stop it. Mr. Brooks finally stepped forward and, in the name of Judge Terry, offered the services of his surgeon, Dr. Hammond. But it was of little use. The ball had entered the right breast, and passed through the upper lobe of the left

Davis, the owner of the ranch, who had been a silent spectator of the duel, started to his feet as Dr. Hammond began cutting away the clothing from the wound, and shouted, excitedly:

"That is murder, by God!"

He moved toward Terry, but was restrained. It was fortunate that his remark had been heard only by the Broderick party, for there were plenty of friends of Terry there, all armed to the teeth. Terry had not moved. His arms were folded, with the muzzle of a pistol projecting behind him. He was erect as ever, and a look of him. He was erect as ever, and a look of inquiry upon his face, as though he expected a call for a second shot. His coolness and nerve were remarkable, even in that gathering. As he fired he was heard to say: "Ah, I struck him a little too high!" Assured that Broderick's wound was fatal, he started for his carriage and was followed by his triends. They drove rapidly to San Francisco, and from there Terry went to his ranch at Stockton, where he quietly awaited events. He was arrested there on Sept. 23 by two detectives from San Francisco, and was put under $10,000 bonds.

Broderick was removed from the dueling ground on a mattress, three-quarters of an hour after he was shot, and was taken to the house of his friend, Leonidas Haskell, at Block Point. He lingered in great pain for three days, and died on Sept. 6. Before he died he said: "They killed me because I was opposed to slavery and a corrupt administration." The excitement in San Francisco and throughout California was tremendous. So many misstatements about the duel were made public that Congressman McKibben and Mr. Colton, two of Broderick's seconds. published a statement over their names correcting the imputations of unfairness. It was still believed by many, however, that Broderick fell a victim to a political plot. The administration at Washington bated and feared Broderick, and it was well known he was regarded as a stumbling block to their plans in California. The evidences of mourning in San Francisco were of the most extravagant nature. The body lay in state in the Union Hotel, and nine-tenths of the population struggled to view it. Flags all over the city were at half-mast. Nine thousand persons, a large number for San Francisco in those days, istened to the funeral oration, delivered by Col. E. D. Baker. Strangeto say, considering the speaker and the audience, one of its principal features was an attack on dueing. More than 3,000 persons followed the hearse on foot, while the crush of car-riages was tremendous.

Of course Judge Terry was acquitted, although the coroner's jury placed the responsibility of Broderick's death upon his shoulders. The immense nerve of the man was shown in the way he acted after the duel. Although he was perfectly well aware of the general hatred he had incurred, he did not draw back from the public gaze in the slightest manner. His indifference to public opinion was displayed in his later marriage to the woman whom the world looked upon as Senator Sharon's

Terry's Turbulent Career.

David S. Terry was born in Todd county, Kentucky, in 1823, and early became an orphan. While still a young man he served in the Texan army, under Sam Houston, in the war for independence waged against Mexico. He afterward read law and was admitted to the bar. He came to California during the gold excitement of 1849, and settled in Calaveras county. Here he plunged into politics almost before he knew the names of the counties. He was elected Chief-justice of the Supreme Court of California at the age of thirty-three. His place was no sinecure. He was opposed to the Vigilantes, who practically ruled the State at the time, and was active in seeking their downfall. In August, 1856, Terry stabbed Sterling A. Hopkins, one of the Vigilantes, in resisting the illegal arrest of Reuben Maloney. The Vigilantes became greatly incensed. They arrested Terry and kept him in close confinement until September. Everybody anticipated that he would be hanged. His discharge was affered him if he would resign his place, but he defied the Vigilantes, despite the entreaties of his wife, and issued an address to the people of California, in which he declared that he would never leave his prison had elected him. He was finally released. He always showed indomitable perseverance, the firmest courage under trying cir-cumstances, and perfect indifference to the opinions of others. He has been a conspic-uous figure in California since the days of '49, and at one time he had more personal enemies than any other three men in the State, owing to the result of his duel with United States Senator David C. Broderick, in 1859, for whose death the entire State of California went into mourning. In the minds of many old residents of California the belief is grounded that the enmity which Terry bore Justice Fields was due to the latter's intimate friendship for Broderick before the latter's death.

During the war Terry commanded a Texas regiment, and upon the cessation of hostili ties returned to California and entered politics. He was made a member of the Democratic State committee in 1875, and in 1879 was nominated for Attorney-general by a branch of the Workingman's party. In 1880 he was a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket, but although all the other electors received majorities ranging from 87 to 143, Terry was defeated by over 500 votes. Since then Terry had retired from politics.

He was married to Sarah Althea Hill, who claimed to be the wife of ex-Sena-tor Sharon while prosecuting her claim against the Sharon estate. This brought him into a resentful attitude toward Justice Field, who, last year, rendered a decision in the United States Circuit Court in this city denying her claim to be the wife of Sharon. Mrs. Terry created a scene in court during the reading of the decision, charging Justice Field with being corrupt, and when she refused to remain quiet Justice Field directed that she be removed from court. When a deputy attempted to carry out the order of the court, she became involved in a per-sonal quarrel with that official, and Judge Terry interfered, drawing a dagger from his vest. He was disarmed, and both Terry and his wife were adjudged in contempt and committed to jail. In the meantime, Justice Field went to Washington to resume his duties on the bench, and returned to this city six weeks ago. Newspaper articles were printed intimating of the place, and they mean business. Field and Judge Terry to meet personally, as it was thought the latter might insult the former, while the fact was also recognized that Justice Field would be quick to resent an attack from Terry, knowing it could only result fatally to one or the other, in view of the latter's record. If Judge Terry had intended to provoke Justice Field and draw a weapon before the latter could turn, is, of course, not known, as Deputy Nagle, who sat opposite, prevented this by firing, resulting in the

Bad Wreck on the Evansville & Terre Haute -Passenger Train Through a Trestle. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

VINCENNES, Aug. 14.—This evening, at 5 o'clock, the north-bound passenger on the Fo Branch division of the Evansville & Tens Haute railway met with an accident by the breaking down of a small bridge twelve miles north of Mount Vernon, which resulted seriously to a number of the passengers. There were about thirty-five passengers on board, and the train consisted of two passenger coaches, a baggage car and a flat car. It was making schedule time, and the locomotive rushed on the trestle-work and got safely over, but the baggage car broke through and was thrown off the rails and turned over the bridge, falling twenty feet, while the rear coach turned down the embankment. About a dozen persons were more or less injured, none, however, thought to be fatally. Baggagemaster Burns, of Henderson, Ky., was badly bruised, and had one of the most remarkable escapes from a horrible death on record. When the crash occurred, the safe in his car was knocked out of position and thrown against Mr. Burns, who was knocked out of the side door of the car to the ground below the trestle-work, fully twenty feet, where he lay stunned and unable to move. He fell in a sort of a depression, where the car he just left rolled over him with a terrific crash. Mrs. Glaze, of Princeton, was badly bruised and injured about the head. Mrs. Hopkins, of Ridgeway, Ill., was injured internally and cut about the head and face. Five or six other passengers were more or less injured, bruised and scratched up. The injured were conveyed to Fort Branch, and everything was done for their comfort.

Entering the Service of the Church.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FORT WAYNE, Aug. 14.-A very impress ive ceremony took place yesterday at the Mother Home Convent of the Handmaids of Christ, when eighteen young ladies took upon themselves vows that take them from legitimate pleasures to a life of seclusion and sacrifice within the convent walls. The following are the young ladies and the names they received in religion:

Misses Margaret Batzen, Sister M. Malonia; Julia Zawaka, Sister M. Gorgonia; Catherine Thien, Sister M. Trebronia; Mary Lindner, Sister M. Eutropia; Frances Schukel, Sister M. In the absence of Bishop Dwenger, Very Reverend J. H. Brammer, the vicar-general, sung the solemn mass and received the profession and vows of the new sisters. Revs. J. H. Oechtering, Chancellor Long, of this city, Father Leo, O. S. F., of Tentopolis, Ills., and many other priests assisted in the ceremonies. Father Leo preached a touching sermon to the young sisters, after which singing by the nuns followed. The chapel, which was beautifully decorated, was packed with friends and invited guests. Very sad was the case of a young novice who had just served her novitiate. She is suffering from consumption, and was hardly able to sit in the cushioned chair which her gentle companions had brought her. She renewed her vows for life, which, in her case, can mean but a brief month.

Confessed His Crime.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal MUNCIE, Aug. 14.—An important arrest was made here this afternoon, by Chief of Police Robinson, who took Wm. Deavenport off the Cincinnati train, where he was en route from Garrett, DeKalb county, on information telegraphed that the young man had robbed his employer, agent Coffinberry, of the B. & O. railway, last evening, of $900, which he took from the safe in the office, and boarded a train for Cincinnati, O., where he has acquaintances. On examination made by the chief and Prosecutor Cronner, $630 was found on his person. after which he made a full confession, say-ing he was induced to do so by an accomplice, but did not divide the spoils, and denies there being $900 in the sum taken; he says there was but $655, and he had spent only $25, which he can speedily pay back if he is allowed to make good the theft. He says it is his first trouble, and that he is of respectable parentage. He will be taken to Auburn, the countyseat, where, he says, he will make a clean confession of everything. Much credit is due Muncie's efficient police chief, who picked the man from a crowded train on

Death of a Farmer from Glanders.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Aug. 14.-A well-defined case of 'equina, or glanders, is reported from Parke county, the victim being Mr. James Spencer, of Jackson township, three miles north of Lena station. The disease broke out among his stock, and it is known that Mr. Spencer received a cut above his eye by his mule raising its head suddenly and inflicting the injury. The wound became inflamed, and continued to grow and spread until the entire left side of his face was one mass of sores, from which issued the usual discharges. Spencer was at-tacked three weeks ago, and lingered until half past 7 yesterday evening, when death came to his relief. A visiting physician from this city describes his condition on Saturday evening as most pitiable and revolting. The State Veterinarian has been notified of the case and will investigate it.

Selling Drinks to Minors,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WINCHESTER, Aug. 14.-For some time past this city has been known as a "dry" town, there being no licensed saloons here. Instead of the licensed saloon, however, the city has two or three places which have been professing to sell the fiery beverage by the quart only, while in reality it seems evident they have been indulging in a freefor-all, drink-as-you-please dispensation. On Monday a number of minors visited one of these resorts and drank a number of "quarts." To-day they were summoned before 'Squire Puckett and gave the whole snap away. Some lively times are likely to result, as Winchester has a strong Law and Order League and temperance committee, composed of some of the best citizens

He is having a great deal of amusement in reading the affectionate epistles, some of which are oddly worded and from all classes of girls.

Postoffice Inspector King has finished the investigation of the affairs of the absconding assistant postmaster of Boonville. The shortage is $6,558.18. This amount was col-lected from Mr. Swint's bondsmen by the inspector. It appears that Postmaster Swint was to allow Denny half of the proceeds of the office for running it, and from what can be learned Swint has never drawn his share of the income, which is estimated at $4,000, making the total defalcation upwards of $10,000.

The first monthly banquet to the members of the Crawfordsville Y. M. C. A. was held last evening, and was attended by 150 persons. Short addresses were made by Judge Thomas, Rev. J. H. BOULANGER SENTENCED.

He and His Friends to Be "Deported to a Fortified Place,"-After They're Caught. Paris, Aug. 14.—The Senate court found Count Dillon and Henri Rochefort to be accomplices of General Boulanger in a felonious attempt against the safety of the state. It also decided, by a vote of 100 to 97, that the acts charged in the indictment against the accused in connection with the presidential cross in 1887 constituted a treasonable attempt. General Campenon, Senator for Neuilly-sur-Seine, argued that the charge of embezzlement made against General Boulanger had been proved. M. Le Royer, President of the Senate, and M. Margaine, Senator for the department of Marine, argued that the court was incompetent to try General Boulanger on the charge of misappropriation of funds, and that the charge must be referred to a court-martial. The court found General Bou-langer guilty on the charge of embezzling public funds and refused to allow that there were extenuating circumstances. The court then sentenced General Boulanger, Count Dillon and Henri Rochefort to be deported to a fortified place. The court adjourned in order to frame the text of the decree, which will be voted on in secret session, and then read at a public sitting.

The different Republican groups in the Senate held a meeting immediately after the adjournment of the court, and passed resolutions requesting the government to enforce the decree after the dissolution of the court. They called attention to the gravity of the conduct of some of the Min-isters in absenting themselves during the trial, and demanded that steps be taken to bring to justice the other officials implicated with Boulanger Dillon and Barthard with Boulanger, Dillon and Rochefort in of the state.

AMUSING FRANCIS JOSEPH. William Entertains Him with a Sham Battle-A Wreath on Frederick's Grave. BERLIN, Aug. 14.-Emperor William and the Emperor of Austria left Berlin at 7:45 o'clock this morning for Spandau, where a sham fight took place. Four battalions of troops crossed the Havel river, which at this point is 450 meters wide, on a bridge constructed of ninety pontoons. The building of the bridge and the passage of the troops were accomplished in a remarkably short time. The battle took place on the heights south of Spandau. One division of ten battalions used the new smokeless powder, while their opponents used the old style of powder. The contrast between the effects of the two explosives was striking, the troops using the old powder being completely enveloped in smoke. The action ended in the western force being thrown back on Spandau. After the battle Emperor William called the officers together, and criticised the operations. The two Emperors funched in a tent that had been especially erected on the field for that purpose.

They returned to Berlin at 1 o'clock. In the afternoon Emperor William and his imperial guest visited the Friedens-kirche, where the Austrian Emperor laid a wreath upon the coffin of the late Emperor Frederick.

GOVERNMENT GIVES IN.

The Liberal Side of the English Tithes Bill Accepted by the Conservatives. LONDON, Aug. 14.-Attorney-general Webster announced in the House of Commons, this evening, that the government had decided to amend the tithes bill by accepting the opposition's proposal to make the landlords, instead of the occupiers, liable for the payment of tithes. The announcement was greeted with cheers by the Liberals, Sir W. Vernon Harcourt expressed his gratification. This announcement, he said, proved that the patience and arduous work of the opposition had not been in vain. The government's decision was equivalent to the introduction of a new bill. [Cheers. The principle for which the Liberals had contended had been recognized. It implied an entire change of the whole system of tithes, involving immense interests and millions of money. Seeing the importance of the government's change of front, the Liberals must ask time to scrutinize the bill when placed upon paper before committing themselves to its acceptance. Mr. Smith, the government leader, admitted that it was reasonable to postpone discussion on the bill until the clauses were textually before the House.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

Bismarck's Organ Requests German Colonists to Avoid Any Clash with English Interests. BERLIN, Aug. 14.-The North German Gazette, Prince Bismarck's organ, referring to the impending meeting of the German Colonial Company, says that angry protests against the action of British officials is politically undesirable. England, the Gazette says, will eventually set matters right. If Germany had been consulted she might have pointed out weighty objections against the German Emin relief expedition. Germany would regret the expedition adopting political aims or encroaching on British spheres or interest. England's friendship is of more value to Germany than all the expedition could obtain on the upper Nile. If Dr. Peters intends forcibly, or jointly with Emin Pasha, to seize a province secured to Turkey and Egypt by treaties, the enterprise will fall under the operation of the laws of the countries whose interests are prejudiced.
